

from Design to Online...

Indigo helps organisations to create their own identity on the World Wide Web.

Our unique business model encapsulates fast deployment of web applications, from design to online, at affordable prices.

The Internet is the expanding market opportunity for ALL businesses regardless of their size, or the products that they sell. This is whether retail, wholesale or service supply. An effective website has become a mandatory requirement for business awareness just as E-mail is needed for better communications and document transmission.

Our mission is simple - to help businesses and organisations talk more effectively to their customers.

We achieve this through good design, effective promotion and ongoing support. We create websites that deliver information quickly, clearly and stylishly.

Indigo puts the needs of the customer first, not our desire as designers for self-expression. The websites that we create allow you to communicate efficiently to your customers; a vital requirement often neglected by existing design agencies.

Our specialist team of website designers and builders work in tandem to provide a wide range of different Internet services, from e-business solutions to Internet marketing.

Our Internet services operate globally and are not limited to the UK.
